New Minister From Moscow In Washington

Mikhail Menshikov May Present Papers To Dulles, President

WASHINGTON (A) - The United States and the Soviet Union appeared about ready today to open the diplomatic negotiations which may eventually lead to an East-

West summit conference. A new Soviet ambassador, Mikhail A. Menshikov, arrived to take command of Moscow's embassy here. He is expected to seek prompt meetings with Secretary of State Dulles and President Eisenhower to present his credentials and thus clear the way for active work. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, who has been home for two weeks of consultation on U.S.-Soviet relations and summit conference problems, is leaving Washington today and will get back to Moscow early next week. Thompson is expected to meet soon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Grmyko to find out how the Soviet government wants to proceed on negotiations for a top-

Americans Demand Freedom of Choice

Ohio Chamber of Commerce has adopted this newspaper's idea that "freedom of choice" is the issue of the proposed Ohio amendment to outlaw union shop contracts.

It will use this phrase in its publicity on the proposal and has generously given the editorial credit for proposing it.

The editorial acknowledged that unions were objecting to calling the proposal a "right to work" amendment and agreed with them. "It should be called a 'freedom of choice' proposal," the editorial said, "because that is what it actually is. It proposes that no Ohioans shall be forced to join a private organization in order to secure his public right to full and equal protection as a citi-

This seemed so obvious that it was strange no one had pointed it out before. But perhaps the failure to point it out before explains something about the nature of the proposal and the issue it raises.

THERE HAS BEEN a great reluctance on both sides of the issue to call things by their right names.

Union-busters have been just as guilty on this score as the strong-arm guys in organized labor who would like to line up duespaying members in nice even rows from here to eternity-and no questions asked. Bud, if you know what's good for you.

The place to start pinning down the issue is the wording of the proposal. This is what it says - and don't take anyone's word for it unless it is in quotation marks:

"No employer or labor organization shall deny or abridge the right to work by requiring membership in, or payment or non-payment of money to, a labor organization as a condition of employment in this state. All agreements in conflict with this section are, to the extent of such conflict, unlawful and

"Ohio's Sen. John W. Bricker delivered an unsolicited tribute to Justice Frankfurther in that day's session of the Senate. He was moved to do so, he declared, by his personal study of Frankfurter's judicial opinions during 19 years on the Supreme Court.

"No one on the bench in that period," said Sen. Bricker, "has shown a better understanding of the need for judicial self - restraint. This understanding is reflected in secres of opinions showing an honest search for congressional intent, a decent respect for state legislatures and state judiciaries, and an aversion to the adjudication of issues which are prematurely raised, basically trivial, or essentially political in character."

To clinch his tribute, Sen. Bricker referred to the fact he and the legal scholar who helped to shape the New Deal under Franklin Roosevelt differ in political philosophy. "Perhaps it is this difference," said the Ohio senator, "which has made me aware of his profound understanding of the judicial func-

In other words, no one in Ohio under such an amendment could be made to join and pay dues to a labor union any more than he could be made to join and pay dues to a church, a lodge, a club, or a political party. Every Ohioan would have the right he was

Any racketeer with big ideas about lining his pockets with union dues collected by coercion - on threat of throwing out the member who didn't stay paid up - would have to take his racket somewhere else.

Any ideological joker with plans to tie somebody in knots with the threat of using an American labor union to put over some political plotting might find himself out on a limb he had just sawed off behind him.

But by the same token, unions serving their members conscientiously would be able to boast that they were surviving on their own merits. As Victor Riesel points out - and he is opposed to the idea - a ban on union shop agreements in states where it has been done has had the effect of strengthening the good unions by making them take care of their members, to hold them in line.

THE JAN. 18 editorial concluded with this

"It goes without saying that there are both good and bad unions. It goes without saying that no U. S. citizen should be made to support any union unless it commands his respect."

Everybody in a free society, should have freedom of choice. Whether or not unions can suspend the right will be an issue in Ohio this year.

Jailhouse Lullaby

When prisoners at a California road camp go to bed at night they are lulled to slumber by a tape recording "piped" to them through tiny microphones in their pillows. The idea is to unite the conscious and the subconscious of the listeners at the threshold of sleep and thereby "implant moral principles necessary for living in society," it is explained by John Locke, public defender of Tulare County, where the experiment is being made.

In the recording, half of the time the voice speaks to the prisoner, "You will have faith in vouself, faith in others and faith in the essential decency of mankind." The other half is as though the listener is speaking to himself." I am filled with love and compassion, so help me God."

The tape is run twice as the prisoner drops off into slumber. After an hour's intermission it continues through the night at a volume barely audible.

Mr. Locke plans to interview the participants after 30 to 60 days to see if it has changed their outlook on life and hopes that a university research group will take on the project from there.

It will be an interesting experiment to watch. Despite the inclination to make light of the project, it is a novel approach to the thorny problem of helping ex-convicts readjujst their lives.

Why Another Meeting?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (P) - The Soviet Union wants another summit meeting. What were the results of the last one in Geneva in 1955?

There were no direct, tangible results. Some months after Geneva the cold war was on again. In fact, it had never stopped. There was perhaps - but only perhaps - an intangible result:

a lessening of tension between East and West. President Eisenhower met for Premier Bulganin and the prime ministers of Britain and France. They settled absolutely nothing. All they did was agree that their foreign ministers should meet in Geneva in October 1955, to try to agree on four problems: The ministers met and agreed on none of the four, which were these: European security; reunification of Germany; disarmament; and development of contacts between East and West.

This is based on the "It's better to jaw-jaw than war-war" theory of foreign relations. Eisenhower some months before Geneva was just as cool toward it as he is toward another one.

He insisted before Geneva, just as he is insisting now, that before the Big Four sit down to talk there must be adequate preparation and agreement on what they shall discuss.

This time he adds another condition: he wants to feel assured some good will come of a second meeting.

This may not mean he expects the Big Four to reach final decisions on anything themselves, any more than they did at Geneva. If he does, then he's changed his view since 1955 when he said at the end of the Geneva conference: "We did not come here to reach final solutions."

people and David Lawrence with the aid of Communist infiltractors who will see that the forth coming "plebiscites" are properly rigged to "ratify" the dictator's decision. Syria shortly will lose her independence altogether. The term "union" of Egypt and Syria is an attempt to fool the world into believing that the two countries voluntarily created a single state. Actually, Nasser, aided by the Communist apparatus, engineered the deal, which in itself has no military importance but, as a source of potential friction, can nevertheless be the forerunner of a world war.

The idea that a "limited war" could be fought in the Middle East without involving Communist "volunteers," as in Korea, is fantastic. For the chances are that, if the Middle East brings on a war, it will draw in all the major powers of the East and West.

JUST AS HITLER'S move into the Rhineland in 1936 and his later "union" of Austria with Germany did not immediately awaken the free world to the dangers ahead, so today's events in Egypt and Syria, even though more menacing, are not exciting worldwide concern. Nothing has been done as yet by the United Nations, for example, to inquire into this new form of aggression as the people of Syria are deprived of their sovereignty through the machinations of Soviet Russia.

For Syria henceforth will be an Egyptian colony. There may be some show of resistance inside the country by the elements that do not want to see their country remain a captive of the Communist empire but, without some aid from the outside, Syria will be-Communist regime in Moscow.

As a strategic move in the "cold war," the Communists have obtained control over a very important area and now will begin blackmailing the other Arab countries in an attempt to force them into a Pan-Arab union. The step constitutes a threat to Jordan, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and Israel as well as to Iran, Iraq and Turkey.

SO FAR as the United States is concerned, it is committed to supply military help upon request if the independence of Iran, Iraq Turkey or other Middle East countries is threatened by Communist imperialism. This commitment was undertaken through the Eisenhower doctrine.

Unforfunately, the Communists got into Syria before the pro-Western elements there could assert themselves in opposition to Nasser. Moscow today controls all the radio stations at Cairo and has a large number of technicians of all kinds inside both Egypt and Syria. The annexation of Syria by Egypt will undoubtedly make it harder for the West to help the Syrian people to regain their independence. Certainly as long as Nasser is in command at Cairo, Syria will remain an Egyptian

There are no sound reasons for uniting Egypt and Syria. The Egyptians are not regarded as true Arabs, and there is no common border between the two countries. The real reason for the move is that the Soviet Union needed two pawns in the Middle East under a single stooge to play her game.

THE STRATEGIC moves of the Soviets in the "cold war" always have a military purpose. This time it is to gain possession of the very fuel on which the economy of Western nations depend.

While the West reads a series of hypocritical letters from Bulganin on disarmament and while prominent Democrats in the United States take such missive seriously and make speeches calling, in effect, for peace at any price with the Soviet Union, the Communist dictators benefit from Western disunity and naivete.

Types of Economic Fuels

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (A) - Plans to get a business recovery off the launching pad run largely today to three types of economic fuels: 1. Easier credit to make borrowing at business and consumer levels attractive. 2. Increased government spending to restore a bit of the late inflationary zip. 3. A possible tax cut to give consumers and maybe business, too, mcre wherewithal to buy the goods that manufacturers have the over capacity to produce. These efforts aim at offsetting the deeper causes of the present slump: leveling off of consumer spending and borrowing to buy, especially of durable goods; and the drop in business spending for capital goods (plant and equipment) and for inventories.

The counter moves also attack the two things blamed by some for triggering off the recessiontight money and the economy wave in defense ordering and

From Our Readers Ojects to Amish Treatment

Several days ago the Associated Press informed the public that six children, age 14 and 15, were taken away from their parnets and placed in custody of the Wayne County Welfare Board at Wooster. Admittedly their parents are God-fearing, hard-working people. Their children equally so, far from being classified as juvenile delin-

The people involved are Amish who sincerely believe that an eighth grade education has equipped their children well enough for their chosen occupation, which is farming. Hence, they refuse to send the kids on to high school. Here is where the extremely peaceful Amish collide with a man

Space does not allow elaborating on the fundamental purpose of education; suffice it to say that it should be designed to prepare the youngster for whatever he wants to be. To be a farmer is the single minded goal of every Amish. And they're good farmers; their fields, worked for generations and kept fertile, testify to that. Despite their old fashioned ways, they're making a good living on the traditional family farm. Crime, juvenile delinquency and other unpleasant by-products of our modern civilization, are unknown amongst them. The philosophy of life of those deeply religious "plain people" can be summed up in the words: don't work in order to live but live in order to work. So far they have been able to keep that spirit alive in their children. However, the law prescribes that they should go on to high school. The Amish consider this educational force feeding, disagreeable with their system. Most of all, though, they fear that the kids might be lured away from the farm. The judge, ordering the children away from home, must have thought of the Roman saying: "Fiat justitita, ruat caelum." But is it really justice? I'd rather apply the Romanian proverb: dreptatea umbla cu capu spart.

meaning that justice often shows a cracked skull. Now I hear some people (including my wife) saying, "It's the law and must be enforced." All right, but aren't there many laws with loopholes, letting racketeers and their kind slip through more often than not? Couldn't there be a loophole for the Amish whose honesty and integrity is beyond doubt? Sort of an exception like granting a special license for an antique auto, I'd say. After all they're preserving a laudable her-

It's cruel to take well behaved children away from well ordered homes, anyway you look at it. Time is at hand to organize a "Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to the Amish." Let their youngsters go to work after finishing the eighth grade, the kind of work that never disgraced man and which the Lord himself likes to see performed.
